Our focus on the practical application of theories

Teaching

- Normally in class between 10-15 hours a week
- Class size varies from 30 – 200
- We teach through a combination of lectures and tutorials/seminars
 - We cover essential theories and research ideas in lectures
 - In tutorials and seminars we ask you to apply these theories to case studies and real-world examples

Assessments

- Varies by module – combination of exams, essays, group-work, presentations, online tests
- Develop range of transferable skills – e.g. teamwork, leadership, presentation, analytical, decision-making, numeracy, report-writing

Placement/internship opportunities

- All students can work part time during their studies – up to 16 hours a week during term time
- You can also undertake an organization based project instead of writing a research based dissertation

Postgraduate organization based projects

- Instead of a purely research based dissertation
- Act as a consultant for a UK based organization
 - The organization identifies a project or task they need support with
 - Students provide expert advice using the knowledge they have gained through their studies
- Invaluable opportunity to
 - Gain practical experience
 - Build a network of contacts
 - Obtain unique insight into an business or charity

Examples of previous projects

- Research consumer behaviour and perceptions of sustainability in services for events venues in the UK
- Develop marketing plan for relaunch of corporate wear product line
- Review online recruitment strategy for a law firm
- Develop a model for creating employment packages for overseas workers for a large charity

Student profile

Yueh Ting

“As an international student, when I apply universities, the first thing I consider is the reputation. Sheffield is one of the top 100 universities in the world, and it has many facilities supporting students in both academic and leisure aspects.

The Management School's Employability Hub organises events for students to enhance the connections with the real business world and elevate relative skills, such as networking and how to deal with interviews. In addition, students could try to apply for the company project as the dissertation, which offer a fabulous chance to contribute the knowledge we learn to the real case.

There are many things making me enjoy my life in Sheffield; for example, making many new friends from different countries ☺ I really recommend international students to apply for SUMS and join the big family!”
